GREAT INTEREST MANIFESTED IN PIANO OWNING CONTEST

A Magnificent $400.00 Newcombe Piano Voted Awarded by Popular Vote to Fortunate Woman in this Section—Public Spirited People Congratulate THE NAPANEE EXPRESS—

First List of Nominations.

The offer made last week by The Napanee Express, by which a magnificent Newcombe $400.00 Piano will be given absolutely free to the woman who succeeds in securing the greatest number of votes by specified dates: April 6th and 9 p. m., June 1st, 1912; has been highly commended and praised by representative people of this section.

On the left hand side of Page One is printed a ballot good for These ballots will appear in the same position throughout the contest.

Below we publish for the first time the names of those enrolled in the Napanee Express Piano Owning Contest—The list includes all names up to Thursday noon and is a most representative one from the section covered by The Napanee Express.

Many girls and women who have appreciated the free offer presented by The Napanee Express have withheld their names that they might have a chance to see who will be their competitors.

Well, to-day the mystery is solved, the secret is out. Now facts are presented to you, ask yourself this question—"Am I not as capable and deserving as anyone listed to the contest?"

Is there a sufficient reason for you to deny yourself longer the opportunity to be the winner of a $400.00 Piano?

If your name does not appear on the list published below, see there next week.

The first vote announced will appear April 19th, so the earlier you come enrolled the more votes you will have for the initial vote announced.

The candidates listed below stand ready to be voted for, and you should take an active part in the voting—Pick out your favorite candidate and send in your votes for her—A Ballot Box has been placed in the Express Office for the reception of votes. All votes placed there will be counted for the first time on Thursday, April 18th. The result of that will appear in all issues of The Napanee Express on Friday, April 19th.

The Contest Department has endeavoured to notify each candidate enrolled that her name would appear in the first list published, unless notified. In case any candidate whose name has been published, does not intend to take an active part in the Contest, her name will be removed from the list immediately.

To those who are already entered in the Contest we would say: asking a person to subscribe for The Napanee Express you are not asking for a favour of that person. If you ask a person for some change for a denomination and they give it to you, you are certainly obliged to that person. You owe that person nothing except thanks for the accommodation. In soliciting a subscription for The Napanee Express you are not under any obligation except for the votes you receive. The newspaper that receives in exchange for the subscription price is value received money. This is not a "something for nothing" Contest. A Four Dollar Prize certainly forms a tangible "something" and you can get it by the expenditure of a little energy. It behooves all those interested in winning a $400.00 Piano to send their names to the Contest Manager, either by using the enrollment blank printed below or by letter.

The full page advertisement which appears on Page Five of the Express, vote schedule which remains the same throughout the contest, and a full perusal of same will familiarize you with the Contest. All letters sent to the Contest Manager, Napanee Express, will be promptly answered.

All particulars pertaining to vote getting, subscriptions, etc., explained in detail upon entering your name as a candidate. The manager will remember at present is, that you must start at once to be successful.

The conditions are simple—you have only two things to do in your nomination, using an enrollment blank, or write a letter to the contest manager. Second—let your friends know you are entered in the contest and want to win the Piano.

On Page One is a printed ballot good for one vote. These ballots will appear in the same position throughout the contest. The list of candidates will be announced in a few days so for the present cut the ballots out of the paper and save them until you see the first list of nominations.

Lack of space on this page does not permit going into detail, but

DESERONTO.

John Armitage, late of Deseronto, with the Scott brokerage firm, Vancouver, B. C., has become a benefited. The young lady to share
"Jack's" joys and sorrows is Miss Verna Vancott, Belleville.

Deseronto has lost another old resident in the person of G. W. Sex-smith. With his family he has gone to Medicine Hat, Alta., where with his sons he will engage in the contracting and building business.

Wm. Rogers, after a service of about forty years with the Rathbun company, has resigned, and is going to try his hand at the carting business.

A destructive fire did $50,000 damage to the plant of the Standard Iron company here, about three o'clock Sunday afternoon. The elevator, engine room, storehouse and boiler room were all gutted, and as a result seventy-five men will be thrown out of employment for a time. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The buildings were all practically of fireproof construction. Chief W. Healy and his firemen fought the blaze for about two hours and did good work in keeping the fire confined to the buildings in which it originated. Mercur & Co., of Montreal, are the principal owners of the concern. A large business is done in making and shipping pig iron.

The spring meeting of the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union of the Anglican Church is to be held in Deseronto on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. On Wednesday, at 8 p. m., at Evensong the special preacher will be the Rev. E. Paterson-Smyth, D. D., rector of St. George's Church, Montreal. Dr. Smyth succeeded the late Dean Carmichael when he was made
Bishop of Montreal, St. George's Church being considered one of the most influential Anglican congregations in the Dominion. Dr. Smyth has a wide reputation as a pulpit speaker, and our people, irrespective of denomination, will doubtless go in large numbers to St. Mark's Church on Wednesday evening next to hear
Dr. Smyth. On Thursday morning at 8 o'clock Holy Communion will be celebrated.

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Author of "The Verdict of the Heart," "A Heritage of Hate," "Nell of Shorne Mills," "Paid For," "A Modern Juliet," Etc.

With the clothes she stood up in—and they were mostly Polly's—and a small handbag, also Polly's, she found herself in the whirl of the crowded thoroughfare. She had remembered a cheap and quiet hotel in one of the streets in the Strand—Durham Street—at which she and her father had stayed many years ago, and she went there in a cab, and was fortunate enough to obtain a room. It was a small one, near the roof, and she sat down on the bed and looked around, and through the window at the opposite roof, with a sense of loneliness which she had never experienced, even in her worst moments. On the island, for Manning had been there to rely on, to cheer and encourage her.

She tried to drive all thoughts of the past from her mind and to fix it on the future, and when she had washed and rested she took out her money and counted it.

There were only a few pounds, and for a moment the reflection flashed across her that there, on the island, she had left wealth which, as Manning had declared, half cynically, was beyond the dreams of avarice.

But the island was far away, so far as to be the island of a dream, and her present needs were very near and pressing.

She remained in her room until the morning; then she rose early and, with every regard to economy, purchased some clothes. After breakfast she made a parcel of the things Polly had lent her and, with a few lines of gratitude, sent them to the address on the card—"26 Percy Street, Chelsea."

Then she set out to begin that most difficult of quests, the search for a livelihood. It need scarcely be stated that she looked through the advertisements in the daily papers. There were several that seemed to her suitable to her case, and she selected one which set forth the desire of "X. Y. Address Messrs. Sloper & Slyne, 249 Rutland Street, Regent Street," for a young lady secretary.

Nina, in the simple black dress she had bought, and with her veil down, found, not without some difficulty, the Rutland Street mentioned in the advertisement, and was somewhat surprised to find that, instead of a private house, which she had expected it to be, it was an office over a rather seedy-looking bonnet shop.

Knocking at the door, which bore in black paint the name of Sloper & Slyne, she was bidden by a shrill voice to enter, and, obeying, found herself in a small room furnished, as far as a desk and two chairs went, as an office.

The first thing that struck Nina was the strong perfume of hair oil, with which she rightly credited the sleek, black head of a young man who was seated at the desk surveying was, a cheesemonger's? Sloper & Slyne—sorry they're not in; they'd be glad to see you—employment agents. See? I'll enter your name and let you know if anything turns up likely to suit you. Though, by the way," he added, with a glance at her, "it would be better if you looked in now and again."

Nina—smile not at her ignorance and unsophistication, reader—was foolish enough to take a sovereign and a shilling from her purse and place them on the desk. The youth caught them up, as if he feared they might fly away if he lacked promptitude, and put them inside the desk.

"That's all right," he said, as it assuredly was from Messrs. Sloper & Slyne's point of view. "You look in again; early and often, you know. Come in to-morrow—in the afternoon. I get back from lunch about four. See? Good-morning."

He got off his seat and opened the door and stood gazing with his gash of a mouth stretched in an admiring grin as Nina went down the stairs.

"My, she's green!" he ejaculated as he tore himself away from the door and returned to the desk. "But she's prime, prime! Wonder if she'll come back, or whether she'll spot the game!"

Nina was not without her suspicions; but she did not spot the game, and the next afternoon—oh, the desolation and the solitude of that day in London, in a place which owned to a population of four millions, and not one friend for the solitary girl!—she again presented herself at Messrs. Sloper & Slyne's.

The youth was in his accustomed seat, and carried a pungent cigarette—it mingled affably with the scent of hair-oil—in his loose and bibulous lips.

"Ah, how are you?" he said with a mixture of impudence and deference, for the refined, beautiful face, with its grave, violet eyes averted even him.

"Glad to see you. Guv'nor's still away. The marquis can't part with 'em. Important business. Sorry to say nothing has turned up." He referred to the ledger and mumbled over it as before. "Rather a slack time just now. Dessay you find time hang 'eavy on your hands. Do myself sometimes. Now, what do you say"—he had sufficient grace to stammer and look uneasy—"what do you say to doing one of the halts this evenin'? I'm not particularly flush—Sloper & Slyne don't pay me a princely salary, oh, by no means!—but I can run to a couple of dress circles for the Frivolity. Know the Frivolity, I s'pose?" with a leer; "I dessay we can manage a bit o' supper afterwards, eh?"

Nina regarded him with an amazement which evidently disconcerted him, for he turned away and eyed the glass and fingered the incipient

Re-Nu-All Wood Polish

An antiseptic wood polish, kills germs and microbes with which the air we breathe is infected, at the same time imparting a brilliant gloss to everything which it is applied, at BOYLE & SON'S.

The first thing that struck Nina was the strong perfume of hair oil, with which she rightly credited the sleek, black head of a young man who was seated at the desk surveying himself in a small, crooked mirror which hung conveniently above it. Seeing that he was an extremely commonplace youth, with a face spotted like the pard, one would have thought that the glass could have afforded him little satisfaction. Nevertheless he did not withdraw his eyes from it as he drawled in a rich cockney accent:

"Well, what is it?"

"I wish to see Messrs. Sloper, & Slyne," said Nina.

At the sound of the musical voice the youth swung round, opened his mouth—it was like a gash across his ill-favored face—and stared at her with watery eyes.

"Oh," he said at last, as if he were slowly recovering from the shock of her beautiful face and low, sweet voice, "you want to see the guv'nors? Sorry; they're both away. Gone on special business to the Marquis of Quisby. Wired for this morning. Awfully sorry. P'raps I'll do. I'm their confidential clerk, you know."

"I came in answer to this advertisement," said Nina, taking it from her purse and laying it on the desk. The youth looked at it curiously, critically, as if it were a curiosity of the rarest kind.

"Oh!" he said at last. "Ah, yes. Quite so! So you want a situation as secretary?"

Nina expressed assent.

"Yes; will you take a chair?" He dragged one forward. Nina sat down and waited, and the youth stared at her and stroked the place where, if the gods are good to him, a moustache will some time grow. "Well," he said, when the silence and the stare had become almost intolerable to Nina, "this place has gone."

Nina promptly rose, saying, "I'm sorry. Good-day."

"Oh, here, stop a moment, you know!" exclaimed the youth in an aggrieved tone. "Don't go like that! There's no hurry. Is there? This thing's gone, but there may be something else to suit you. I mean see."

He turned—his eyes left Nina's face slowly and reluctantly—to the desk, and opening a letter ran through the pages, muttering in a sing-song voice to himself, but glancing the while out of the corner of his watery, vulgar little eyes at Nina.

"Nursery governess, £50 a year." Ah, that's gone. "Lady help in a nobleman's family." That's gone. "Companion to a clergyman's widow." Filled up last week. "Secretary to a Member of Parliament." And that's gone. Don't seem to be anything left to suit you at present. You'd better let me put you on the books, Miss—Miss—er—"

"Wood," said Nina.

"Wood. Right. And address?"

"Hickley's Hotel, Durham Street," said Nina.

"Right. One guinea booking-fee, please," he remarked in a businesslike tone.

"Is this a registry for situations?" asked Nina with pardonable surprise.

"Of course it is!" he responded, briskly. "What did you think it messy we can manage a bit of supper afterwards, eh?"

Nina regarded him with an amazement which evidently disconcerted him, for he turned away and eyed the glass and fingered the incipient moustache with some embarrassment.

Nina leant forward in her chair, her heart beating fast with a sensation of disappointment tempered by disgusted amusement.

"Are you asking me to go with you—with you—somewhere?"

"That's so," he said uneasily. "You'd better."

Nina laughed bitterly, for her eyes were suddenly opened.

"Tell me—though it isn't necessary—is this pretence of business, of getting me a situation, only a pretence? Tell me the truth, please."

Something in the musical voice, so low and yet so clear and commanding, compelled the youth to an unaccustomed veracity which afterwards astonished him.

"Well, you know," he said, grudgingly, "if you drive me into a corner—and that's where you are driving me, don't you know—it's something like what you call it. We're a registry office. We take the fees, don't you know. As to the situation—he shrugged his narrow shoulders—"we might get 'em or we mightn't; most often and generally we mightn't."

Nina rose pale and statuesque in her anger.

"But don't you cut up rough! Look here, you're no good for any of this 'secretary' or 'companion' business. You're a lady; anybody can see that with 'alf an eye. What you want, with that face of yours, is the theatre or the 'alls. You come with me to the Frivolity and we'll talk it over—"

Nina rose, pale to the lips, but smiling.

"My good boy!" she said. "Haven't you a mother, a sister? Is there no one to teach you—no? I will not go with you to this place. Will you give me back my guinea?"

The youth's face fell.

"Can't!" he ejaculated. "Entered in the books. More than my place is worth. Sure you won't come with me? Pleasant evenin'."

As Nina moved towards the door he followed her.

"Hi!" he said. "Look here. You're new at this game. Take my advice and cut it. There's no good in it. They'll—Sloper & Slyne or anyone else, it don't matter—pocket your coin and do nothing for you. Cut the secretaryship business. Better go on the stage. Why, lor', you're made for it! And I say, won't you be nice and friendly, miss? Won't you join me in a regular beno of an evenin'?"

Nina left him, pleading and expostulating, and made her way out into Regent Street.

Early in the afternoon as it was, the well known thoroughfare was crowded, and she was jostled and elbowed as she made her way to the Strand. She went back to the hotel discouraged and dismayed. She had spent a guinea at the sham registry office, and saw no prospect of employment. She was too tired, too heart-sick to eat, and she spent the rest of the evening in the attic near the sky. At nightfall, weary of her solitude and the thoughts that weighed upon her like a physical burden, she went out. The streets were crowded and her solitude in the midst of the multitude was almost intolerable. She made her way to the Embankment and, leaning against the stone work which keeps the slow but mighty Thames in bounds, looked listlessly yet longingly at the brown water sweeping placidly towards the sea.

tering the air, when he upon the figure clinging to Polly—for it was she—moment, then she went up. "Now, then," she said, "ter-of-fact voice, 'what a ing here; what is the matt Nina turned her white Polly uttered an exclamation and dismally."

must have felt it, for no doubt he loved her. She is not only the most beautiful woman in the world—"

"Present company excepted," said Sir Charles, with a fond glance over his shoulder at the figure sitting up in bed.

"Nonsense," retorted Lady Letchford. "I don't feel foolish! I was never in the same street—oh, I wish I did not pick up your slang so easily!—I never could be compared with Judith; she was, and is, and always will be, simply incomparable. But I hate her for treating Mr. Mannering so cruelly."

"Well, she was punished, anyhow," said Sir Charles. "Fancy chucking over a man like Vane for old Marlborough!"

"He was a marquis, you see," murmured Lady Letchford.

"A man old enough to be her grandfather! That he should die two days before the wedding is—er—what do you call it—"

"Poetical justice, do you mean? It served her right. But, Charlie, if it isn't the wreck and the privations he suffered—did you notice how he shirked speaking of them?—and it isn't Judith, what is it that has changed him so?"

Sir Charles shook his head.

"I don't know. Anyway, whatever it is, it has hit him hard, deuced hard. I don't suppose we shall ever find out. Vane can be as close as an oyster when he likes."

"Well, you've got to help him all you can," concluded Lady Letchford, with a sigh. "And do put those brushes down—you'll brush all the hair off your head!—and come to bed! The look in that poor man's face will keep me awake all night—if I don't go off at once."

Mannering paced his room for some hours, feeling that bed was impossible for him.

He was the Earl of Lesborough, owner of an historic title and a vast estate and wealth which had been accumulating steadily during the reign of the late earl, who had lived a penurious existence devoted to amassing money and finding good investments for it.

And of what use to him—Vane—were the title and the money? His heart was buried on the sands of an unknown island in the Pacific. It had died within his bosom in the hour he had seen the wreck of the Mannering nodded. It all seemed so unreal, so impossible. Why, a few months ago he had been a mere nobody, of no consequence, a kind of adventurer, free to go and go as he willed, in whose affairs no one was interested. And now—He looked round the snugly furnished office, at the white-haired, smiling, deferential old lawyer as if the whole thing were a dream from which he should presently awake.

"Of course you will go down to Lesborough at once," continued Mr. Tressider. "Do you propose living there, or will you go into the town house? It has been closed for some time; you know that the late earl was—er—economical? He amassed a large fortune; you will benefit by his economy and prudence, my lord!"

Vane gazed absently at the window, through the grimy panes of which he could see the rooks which had attracted his attention as he entered; and they still seemed to have more interest for him than the lawyer's remarks.

"I think I'll go to Lesborough," he said, at last, but with an indifference which disappointed Mr. Tressider, who had expected the new earl to display some eagerness if not excitement. "I haven't made any plans."

"Quite so; quite so! Too early yet; you have scarcely realized your sudden accession to the title, the change in your life. I will write to the steward, Mr. Holland—you remember him?—he will want to make some preparations. Fear, dear, how glad I am to find you are alive! None of your friends can be more rejoiced. I assure you, my lord. Strange!"—he smiled and paused—"I was just writing to the next heir. I am afraid you can scarcely expect him to share in my satisfaction."

Vane looked interested for the first time.

"The next heir?" he said, enquiringly.

"Yes; your cousin, Mr. Julian Shore. He wrote to me, and called on me when poor Lord Augustus and his boy died, and we feared you were lost in the Alpina. He was, very naturally—er—interested in the question of the succession."

"How can he, with the name of Shore, be the next heir?" asked Vane.

"Oh, don't you know? Weren't you aware that there was a family of

And what use to him—Vane— were the title and the money? His heart was buried on the sands of an unknown island in the Pacific. It had died within his bosom in the hour he had seen the wreck of the raft at his feet, had swam out to the little wooden cap which was all that remained to him of Nina, his wife, the woman he loved.

He threw himself on the bed at last and slept; but it was only to dream of the island, only to go over the scene of the marriage and the too few days that followed it.

Letchford, going to him in the morning, found him asleep, but tossing restlessly, and returned to Lady Letchford with a doleful shake of the head.

But when Mannering appeared at breakfast he was, outwardly at least, calmer and more like a man in a normal condition.

"I'm afraid I upset and distressed last night, Lady Letchford," he said with grave apology. "The—the shock—"

"That's all right, Blanche understood," said Letchford, cheerily. "Have some more bacon—it's of no use offering you anything else, because no one eats anything at break- fast but bacon. Shall I go with you to Mr. Tressider, Vane? I will, if you like."

"We will do anything and every- thing you like, Lord Lesborough," murmured Lady Letchford.

Mannering started at the "Lord Lesborough," and abruptly set down his coffee cup which was on its way to his lips.

"No, I think I'll go alone," he said; and soon after breakfast he set off.

Mr. Tressider was one of the old-fashioned lawyers who stick to the Inns. His office was in Grey's, and Mannering, as he mounted the steep and not too clean stairs, paused and looked absently at the trees in which the rooks had nested and brought out their young; he did not seem in any hurry to put in his formal claim to the title.

A confidential clerk, of as old a fashion as his master, received Mannering, and with a grave earnestness ushered him into the presence of the lawyer.

Mr. Tressider came to meet him with outstretched hand, and exclaimed with intense satisfaction and pleasure:

"Lord Lesborough! At last! How do you do? I need scarcely say that I am glad to see you! My advertise- ment will be sufficient proof of that."

"I've seen none," said Mannering. "I've been abroad—been wrecked. I heard the—the bad news for the first time last night, from my friend, Sir Charles Letchford—"

Mr. Tressider nodded; he had a nod which Lord Butleigh would not have been ashamed to own.

"Quite so; quite so! I have the honor of Sir Charles Letchford's ac- quaintance. So, of course, you know the—er—sad circumstances which have placed you in possession of the title. Very sad; very sad! But I am very glad to see you, my lord."

The title was still strange to Man- nering and he moved uneasily.

"All the more glad," continued the old lawyer, "because at one time we almost feared that you had com- pletely disappeared, in fact, were lost. Of course, we heard of the wreck of the Alpina. I am so rejoiced you were saved! I have done the best I could during your absence, and I think the business of the estate has been carried on as you would have wished it to be."

tion of the succession. "How can he, with the name of Shore, be the next heir?" asked Vane.

"Oh, don't you know? Weren't you aware that there was a feud between his father and the late earl? So great and bitter that he discarded the name of Mannering and took the name of Shore, which Mr. Julian now bears."

"I never heard of him," said Man- nering. "I'm afraid he will be very disappointed at my turning up," he added, grimly.

"No doubt; no doubt," asserted Mr. Tressider, dryly.

"What kind of man is he?" asked Mannering.

Mr. Tressider hesitated. It was the sort of question which a cautious old lawyer would not be disposed to an- swer very readily.

"He is a young man about five-and- twenty, I should say—a remarkably good looking young fellow; not like the Mannerings, by the way; but dark, very dark. His mother was a Spaniard. He has very nice manners —nothing could be more tactful and —er—proper than his way of regard- ing his claim to the title and es- tates."

"Is he poor?"

Nature's Way Is The Best.

Buried deep in our American forest we find bloodroot, queen's root, mandrake and stone root, golden seal, Oregon grape root and cherrybark. Of these Dr. R. V. Pierce made a pure glyceric extract which has been favorably known for over forty years. He called it "Golden Medical Discovery."

This "Discovery" purifies the blood and tones up the stomach and the entire system in Nature's own way. It's just the tissue builder and tonic you require when recovering from a hard cold, grip, or pneumonia. No matter how strong the constitution the stomach is apt to be "out of kilter" at times; in consequence the blood is disordered, for the stomach is the laboratory for the constant manufacture of blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience at this time of the year is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin—you feel "blue."

J. G. KENT, ESQ.

"More than a week ago I was suffering with an awful cold in my head, throat, breast, and body," writes MR. JAMES G. KENT, of 710 L. Street, S. E., Washington, D. C. "Some called it La Grippe, some pneumonia. I was advised by a friend to try a bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I tried a bottle and it did me so much good that I feel safe in saying it is the greatest and best medicine that I ever took. My health is much better than it was before using your medicine. It does all you claim for it and is satisfactory."

Father of Warships.

Sir William White, who has just completed his 67th year, has probably done more for the world's navies than any man living. For sixteen years he was Director of Naval Construction, during which time he designed more than two hundred and fifty battle-ships, the building and equipment of which represented an outlay of one hundred millions sterling. The principles of naval architecture laid down by him have been followed in every shipbuilding yard in the world, and his pupils have covered the oceans with copies or developments of his design. Sir William began his career as a shipwright apprentice at Devonport in the early sixties, and was appointed to the Admiralty at the age of twenty-two, when Sir Edward Reed was Chief Constructor. He remained at the Admiralty until 1902, when a breakdown in health caused his retirement. He once nearly lost his life in a submarine. The boat stuck in the mud at the bottom, and was only raised in the nick of time.

How to Change the Color of a Cat.

Remarking that cold storage is the best method of preserving meat on board ship, Professor P. A. Ellis Richards, lecturing at the Queen's College, told the story of a certain cat, which had slipped into the hold of a vessel bringing meat from Buenos Ayres, and been there immured for the whole voyage.

The animal fared excellently during its incarceration, as was apparent when the cold storage compartment was opened in London and the cat walked forth, plump and smiling. The only difference observable was that the Arctic rigors of its recent environment had changed the color of its fur from black to white.

PRESS COMMENTS.

Hamilton Times—Sir James Whitney strains credulity when he asseverates that the spoils system does not exist in Ontario. It is another case of denying the existence of bi-lingual schools. And he knows it.

Toronto Globe—Lucky Borden! He has now an opportunity to assuage the thirst for office of his supporters by appointing an investigating commission to investigate the chief investigator of the Morine commission.

Montreal Gazette—Milwaukee has tired of its socialistic mayor and council. Perhaps it was not altogether socialism that ailed these gentry. Australia and New Zealand have not yet become tired of experimenting with the real article.

Brandon Sun—Reverting to the "banish the bar" campaign, we wish to point out that a lot of chaps are willing to go this far: that they'll banish all the stuff behind the bar, if you'll pay for it, and give 'em reasonable time.

Kemptville Advance—The Premier of old Quebec has just introduced a bill in the Provincial Legislature to enfranchise everybody but "women and vagabonds." Too narrow, Sir Lomer, too narrow! Why exclude the vagabonds.

Kemptville Reporter—But the question arises, if it is in the best interests of the people to stop the sale of liquor on statutory and civic holidays, why not every day and be done with it? If it's a good principle let it prevail—"banish the bar."

Lethbridge Herald—The tenseness of the political situation in Manitoba is revealed in the free use of profanity at committee meetings of the Legislature and the abusive attitude of Premier Roblin towards anyone who dares oppose his Czarship.

Kingston Standard—The truth is that the hotelkeepers have themselves to blame for a great deal of the odium attached to the trade. If they observed the law, sold pure liquors and refused intoxicants to a man already under the influence of alcohol, the public would not find so much fault with them.

RECKLESS SPORT.

Rock Rolling Feats of Mark Twain In His Boyhood Days.

A BAD SCARE ENDED THE FUN

The Final Prank on Holliday's Hill Was In a Fair Way of Ending In a Tragedy When the Danger Was, by a Bit of Good Luck, Narrowly Averted.

Writing on "Mark Twain" in Harper's Magazine, Albert Bigelow Paine recounts some of the scrapes of the youthful Sam Clemens. Sam was a recognized ringleader among his playmates, and one of the pranks they played nearly had a fatal termination.

"One of their Sunday pastimes was to climb Holliday's hill and roll down big stones to frighten the people who were driving to church. Holliday's hill above the road was steep. A stone, once started, would go plunging and leaping down and bound across the road with the deadly swiftness of a twelve inch shell. The boys would get a stone poised, then wait until they saw a team approaching and, calculating the distance, would give it a start. Dropping down behind the bushes, they would watch the dramatic effect upon the churchgoers as the great missile shot across the road a few yards before them.

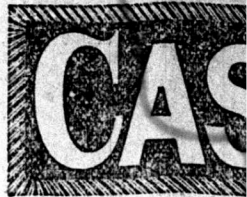

"This was Homeric sport, but they carried it too far. Stones that had a habit of getting loose so numerous on Sundays and so rarely on other days invited suspicion, and the 'patterollers'—river patrol, a kind of police of those days—were put on the watch. So the boys found other diversions until the patterollers did not watch any more. Then they planned a grand coup that should eclipse anything before attempted in the stone rolling line.

"A rock about the size of an omnibus was lying up there in a good position to go downhill, once started. They decided it would be a glorious thing to see that great boulder go smashing down a hundred yards or so in front of some unsuspecting and peaceful minded churchgoer. Quarrymen were getting out rock not far away and left their picks and shovels over Sundays. The boys borrowed these and went to work to undermine the big stone. It was a heavier job than they had counted on, but they worked faithfully Sunday after Sunday. If their parents had wanted them to work like that they would have thought they were being killed.

"Finally one Sunday while they were digging it suddenly got loose and started down. They were not quite ready for it. Nobody was coming but an old colored man in a cart, so it was going to be wasted. It was not quite wasted, however. They had planned for a thrilling result, and there was thrill enough while it lasted. In the first place, the stone nearly caught Will Bowen when it started. John Briggs had just that moment quit digging and handed Will the pick. Will was about to step into the excavation when Sam Clemens, who was already there, leaped out with a yell:

"Look out, boys; she's coming!"

to blame for a great deal of the odium attached to the trade. If they observed the law, sold pure liquors and refused intoxicants to a man already under the influence of alcohol, the public would not find so much fault with them.

Peterboro' Examiner:—The time has expired for the filing of a protest against the return of Hon. Geo. P. Graham, in South Renfrew. The Conservatives—that is, the machine-operating Conservatives, who forced this election—do not apparently relish the post-mortem revelations that a protest investigation would bring out.

Brandon Sun—It is also suggested that the decline in beef production resulting from the breaking up of ranches should be met by the raising of more cattle on the western farms. Mixed farming will probably be the permanent remedy. The spreading of this system through a large part of the west will not only regulate the supply of beef and other meats, but it will prevent the decline of the west as an agricultural country.

Hamilton Spectator—A great ado is made about the use of tawse in educational and reformatory institutions. There is not nearly as much of this as there was in the days of yore, and perhaps not as much as would be good for some portion at least of the rising generation. The cases regarding which complaint is occasionally made are those in which the punishment seems to have been richly deserved, and wherein it would have been difficult to devise any better means of enforcing authority.

Galt Reporter (Conservative)—Every increase of friendly relationships, whether in trade or social intercourse, is a barrier raised against war, and if Canada abolished the discriminations against other countries involved in the British preference we would do more to diminish the antagonism between Great Britain and Germany than by the gift of any number of dreadnoughts. Every new tie of friendship between Canada and Germany is a new argument against the prevalent navalomania.

London Street Beggars.

Speaking of the swarm of beggars and "panhandlers" in the English metropolis, the London Times says: "The streets of London never fail to attract the professional beggar and never disappoint him. The Mendicity society tells us that a beggar can earn more than the wages of the average working-man and that 'it is probably no exaggeration to say that well over $500,000 is given away haphazard to beggars in the streets of London every year.'"

Her Resentment.

Alice—It's mean of you to tell people that when Jack kissed me I didn't resent it. Maud—I didn't, dear. On the contrary, I said that when he kissed you on the cheek you held it up against him for quite awhile.—Boston Transcript.

Bowen when it started. John Briggs had just that moment quit digging and handed Will the pick. Will was about to step into the excavation when Sam Clemens, who was already there, leaped out with a yell:

"Look out, boys; she's coming!"

"She came. The huge stone kept to the ground at first, then, gathering a wild momentum, it went bounding into the air. About halfway down the hill it struck a tree several inches thick and cut it clean off. This turned its course a little, and the negro in the cart, who heard the noise, saw it come crashing in his direction and made a wild effort to whip up his horse. It was also headed toward a cooper shop across the road.

"The boys watched it with growing interest. It made longer leaps with every bound, and whenever it struck the fragments and dust would fly. They were certain it would demolish the negro and destroy the cooper shop. The shop was empty, it being Sunday, but the rest of the catastrophe would invite close investigation and results. It was making mighty leaps now, and the negro had managed to get directly in its path. They stood holding their breath, their mouths open.

"Then suddenly—they could hardly believe their eyes—the bowlder struck a projection a distance above the road and, with a mighty bound, sailed clear over the negro and his mule and landed in the soft dirt beyond, only a fragment striking the shop, damaging but not wrecking it. Half buried in the ground, that bowlder lay there for nearly forty years. Then it was blasted for milling purposes. It was the last rock the boys ever rolled down. They began to suspect that the sport was not altogether safe.

"Limelight and the center of the stage was a passion of Sam Clemens' boyhood, a love of the spectacular that never wholly died. It seems almost a pity that in those old faroff, barefoot days he could not have looked down the years to a time when, with the world at his feet, venerable Oxford should clothe him in a scarlet gown."

As to Clocks.

"What an elegant timepiece that is," said the old time friend.

"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox; "that's about as elegant a clock as money will buy."

"You were once content with a much simpler affair."

"Of course. Nobody wants to waste more than a dollar on a clock that wakes him up and tells him when to go to work. But when it wakes him up and reminds him that he doesn't have to go to work he feels more friendly and liberal."—Washington Star.

A Woman's Reason.

"Why," asks the inquisitive person, "do you enjoy having some one tell you that you are pretty when you know you are not? Does it make you believe that you are?"

"No," she answers readily. "But it makes me believe that he believes I am."—Judge's Library.

HORSE TAILS.

We Import Them From All Over the World and Also Export Them.

An item that seemed odd in the manifest of a steamer lately arrived from Japanese and Chinese ports was this in the list of her cargo from Tientsin: Fifty-five cases of horse tails.

As a matter of fact, horse tails or the hair thereof are a common article of importation into this country from China and from pretty much every other country on earth. The American market gets large quantities of them from China, but more from Russia, and horse tails are imported here from every other European country and from South America, from Australia, from all round the world. On the other hand, there are more or less American horse tails exported.

From various causes the supply of horse tails, like that of anything else, may in one country and another vary from year to year, and there may be years when the world's supply is short and years when it is plentiful, with corresponding changes in the range of prices. Horse tails have sold as low as 20 cents a pound, and they have sold for as much as $2. If stocks are scarce and high in London and ample at lower prices here New York importers ship horse tails to London. In the contrary circumstances London importers might ship horse tails here.

Horse tail hairs are sorted for length and colors, and they are used either alone or mixed with other fibers in the manufacture of various sorts of brushes and mixed with other materials in the manufacture of haircloth. — New York Sun.

SCHOOL FOR PRINCES.

India Possesses an Institution of the Most Aristocratic Sort.

India possesses a school—the Rajkumar College at Rajkut, in the province of Kathiawar, Bombay Presidency—which is the only one of its kind in the world. No one but a prince can become a "kumar," or princely student. At the present time there are forty of these little princes at the college, each with his miniature suite, presided over by an official known as a "musaheb." Never must a musaheb let his kamur out of his sight, except during school hours. The "Rules for Musahebs" throw a valuable light upon the upbringing of Indian princes:

"Musahebs are to keep control over the kumar's servants, and see that they do their work properly, paying particular attention to the cleanliness of the rooms. They are responsible for the regularity of the kumar's meals, and for the quality and measure of the food, as also for seeing that there is no waste in the kitchens. They are to see that beyond their legitimate work the servants have

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Forter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna."

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me. I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it."

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me."

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment."

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

nothing to do with the kumars."

The history of this remarkable school has just been completed by his highness Sir Bhaysinhji, Maharajah of Bhavnagar. This history, entitled "Forty Years of the Rajkumar College," has been eagerly expected, and is one of the most astonishing works ever published. It comprises seven prodigious volumes, so heavy that they can only be lifted with difficulty. Nine tons of paper—six for the text and three for the illustrations—have been used in the manufacture of the 1,000 presentation sets. Eighteen months were occupied by the publishers in the production, which involved the printing of 180,000 plate-sunk photographs, and the cost has run into many thousands of pounds.

Sets bound in the finest royal red morocco have already been presented through the governor of Bombay to King George and Queen Mary. A similar set is on its way to Canada for the Duke of Connaught, while the Prince of Wales will be the fortunate recipient of a fourth set.

Whistler's White Feather.

One of Mr. Whistler's many peculiarities was a lock of white hair gleaming from among the black tresses on his forehead. At one house to which he had been invited to dinner the butler came into the drawing room and whispered:

"There's a gent downstairs says 'e 'as come to dinner wat's forgot 'is necktie and stuck a fever in his 'air."

For at this period Whistler never wore a necktie when in evening dress.

The white lock bewildered others. On one occasion when in a box at the opera the attendant leaned over and said, "Beg your pardon, sir, but there's a white feather in your hair, just on top."

WHAT DRAINAGE IS WORTH IN A DRY SEASON.

Free Assistance in Drainage Again Offered by the O. A. C.

During the exceptionally dry season of 1911 land that was underdrained produced on the average about $16.50 more per acre than land that was not drained, according to data collected by the Department of Physics at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Reports were received from a large number of farmers, of whom twenty-five were able to give definite figures on yields on drained and undrained land. Three of the number said they saw no difference, but all the others reported increases. Eleven counties were represented in the reports, from Durham in the East to Essex in the West. The value of increases, including straw, was figured at October 1911 prices, and March 1912 prices. The former showed an average of $15.97 per acre and the latter $17.04, and both together an average of $16.50. The three who reported no increase were counted in obtaining the averages.

In wet seasons the results are even more marked, but even at $16.50 per acre, drains more than pay for themselves in two years.

The O. A. C. is again renewing its offer of assistance to farmers in laying out their drainage systems. The Department of Physics has a special staff of Drainage Advisors for this work. There is no charge for the services of these men, the only outlay to the farmer being the travelling expenses, which are low. As the railway fare is only one cent a mile for this work, and as several surveys are always made on one trip the expenses are divided among the several parties concerned. Anyone wishing to have a drainage survey made should drop a card to the Department of Physics, O. A. C., Guelph, whereupon regular application form will be sent, and later on one of the Department's Drainage Advisers will make the survey.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, April 8.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 46 carloads—920 cattle, 12 hogs, 13 sheep, 18 calves and 26 horses.

Exporters.

Mr. Howard bought for Swift & Co. 54 steers, 12.0 lbs. each, for Liverpool, at an average of $6.35.

Butchers.

Butchers' heavy steers and choice quality sold at from $7 to $7.40; butchers' steers, 1000 to 1100 lbs., $5.75 to $7; good, $8.40 to $8.65; medium, $5.50 to $6.20; common, $5 to $5.75; cows, $2 to $5, and extra choice at $4.75; bulls, $4 to $5.15.

Milkers and Springers.

Not many milkers and springers on sale. Prices ranged from $10 to $25 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves were firm, at $5 to $5.50, and "bobs" at $2.75 to $3 each.

Sheep.

Not enough on sale to make a market. Prices, however, are quoted firm at $5 to $6.50 for ewes; rams, $4 to $5.25; yearlings, $7 to $8.75; spring lambs, $1 to $3 each.

Hogs.

There were 29 hogs on the market, all bought by the Swift Canadian Company, at $8.25 to $9.30, fed and watered at the market.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 8.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 6 were 600 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 2000 calves. The offerings on the market for sale were 400 cattle, 25 sheep and lambs, 750 hogs and 200 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firm, owing to the very small offerings, which is usually the case every year at the first market after the Easter trade. Butchers generally have sufficient beef on hand to supply their wants for two or three weeks, consequently the gathering of buyers was small, and, as the demand from the large packing concerns was also limited, the trade on the whole was slow. A few choice steers sold at $7 to $7.25, and top quality cows at $6.50 to $8 per 100 pounds, but the demand for all kinds of common stock was almost nil.

The undertone for the market for hogs was strong, and prices have scored a further advance of 10c to 20c per 100 pounds, owing to the continued small supplies coming forward, which to some extent is attributed to the increasing scarcity throughout the country and the very bad condition of the country roads in some sections. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 to $9.10 and $9.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Supplies of small meats were very small, and in consequence trade was also quiet, with no change in prices to note. A few lambs changed hands at $2.25 to $2.50 per 100 pounds, and calves sold at from $2 to $3 each, as to size and quality.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7 to $7.25; do., medium, $5.50 to $5.75; do., common, $4.50 to $5.25; canners, $3 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.50 to $6; do., medium, $4 to $5; do., bulls, $4.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, $5 to $7; do., common and medium, each, $30 to $50; springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $5 to $5.25; bucks and culs, $1.50 to $1.75. Lambs, $2.25 to $2.50.

Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower,
Liverpool Exchange Closed—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, April 8.—An eccentric downward whirl of more than two cents a bushel in the price of May wheat to-day was taken by many speculators to indicate that the former bull leaders had been deserted by the trade and the public. Nevertheless, at the end of the session the nearby option was but little more cheapened relatively than either of the new crop futures. The close was steady at 1-8c and 1-4c to 1-2c lower than Saturday night. Corn finished 1-2c to 5-8c and 3-4c down, oats off 1-8c and 1-4c to 1-2c, and provisions less expensive by 2 1-2c to 15c.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, April 8.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was very quiet owing to the fact that there was only a little demand from the continent for April-May shipment, for which the prices bid were all out of line. There is a steady demand for oats from local and outside buyers, but the volume of business doing is only fair. The local trade in flour was fair, but the demand from foreign buyers was very quiet. In rolled oats the feeling is strong, and prices have scored another advance of 10c per barrel, and cornmeal has gone up 25c per barrel. Demand for butter is fair at firm prices. AWED BY NAPOLEON.

Queer Impression the Emperor Made Upon Countess Potocka.

We waited rather long, and it must be acknowledged our curiosity was not unmingled with fright. Of a sudden the silence was broken by a swift rumor, the wings of the door opened noisily, and M. de Talleyrand advanced, with a loud and intelligible voice uttering the magic word that made the world tremble, "The emperor." Immediately Napoleon made his appearance and halted for a minute as if to be admired.

So many portraits exist of this astonishing man, his history has been so much written about, all the stories told by the children of his old soldiers will live so long, that the generations to come will know him almost as well as ourselves. But what will be difficult to grasp is how deep and unexpected the impression was which those felt who saw him for the first time.

As for me, I experienced a sort of stupor, a mute surprise, like that which seizes one at the aspect of a prodigy. It seemed to me that he wore an aureole. The only thought I could frame when I recovered from this first shock was that such a being could not possibly die; that such a mighty organization, such a stupendous genius, should never perish. I inwardly awarded him double immortality.—From the Memoirs of the Countess Potocka.

The Pulse Watch.

Among the ingenious devices for the physician may be mentioned a watch constructed on the "stop" principle whereby the number of pulse beats per minute may be indicated. A push button is pressed at the beginning of the count and again at the twentieth pulsation, when the number of beats per minute is shown on a dial without the necessity for calculation. Still another push on the button brings the counter back to the starting point. In the ordinary method of taking the pulse the observer is obliged to do two things at the same time—count the beats and keep his eye on the second hand of his watch. With the pulse watch only one operation is necessary, the counting of the pulsation up to twenty, when the push button is pressed.

INSULTED HIS COLONEL.

An Offense For Which a French Soldier Had to Die.

By deliberately insulting a superior officer at a court martial a French soldier at Lille incurred the death penalty. The incident is a deplorable one. The fact that the officers had to condemn the man is likewise painful, but the military regulations were plain and left no alternative.

A dragoon in one of the regiments at Lille was being tried before a court martial. Another dragoon of the same regiment, who was undergoing arrest for some other fault, was summoned as a witness. When this dragoon entered the room of the court martial he was asked by the presiding colonel to take off his cap. The man took this in bad part and flung his cap at the colonel, following it up with a storm of abusive language.

When he had finished, the colonel, out of sheer good nature, asked him to reflect and express regret for his action, which he was willing to look upon as a momentary outburst of temper. The dragoon merely repeated his insults. The court martial immediately deliberated and at the end of a quarter of an hour gave judgment condemning the dragoon to death.—Boston Transcript.

PILES CUR

Writing from Poplar, B.C., Hanson, proprietress of the Central Hotel, says: "I suffered with bleeding piles. The pain was bad at times that I could hardly stand and ordinary remedies seemed unable to give me any ease. I decided to undergo an operation. For a time I was better, but within twelve months piles became as painful as tried liniments, hot poultices, 'pile cures,' and indeed everything I could think would be likely to do good, but still I continued to suffer and the shooting, burning, pains, the dull, aching, raw feeling that the disease caused continued as bad as ever."

"One day I read about ZAM-BUK and thought I would try it. One or two boxes gave me more than anything else I had tried went on with the treatment a short time I began to feel a different and better. Well, I used ZAM-BUK, and by the time I used six boxes I was delighted myself entirely cured. That's years ago, and there has been no return of the trouble."

New Books at Library.

What shall I read? This is a question often asked and difficult to answer and rarely wisely answered. Here's a list of good books—fresh from the press and adapted to all tastes. They are the choicest of recent publications, and some one or more of them should appeal to every reader. Cut out the list, and when you next want a good book to read make your selection and ask the librarian of the Public Library for it. They were all placed upon the shelves this week.

A Voice from the Congo—A book of rare adventures, beautifully illustrated, ought to entertain old and young. Too expensive for the ordinary book buyer, but now brought within the reach of all.

A Short History of Scotland—The subject itself is attractive, and when we add that it is written by Andrew Lang, that should be enough to commend it to the most fastidious.

Scots in Canada—A neat little book telling in in short narrative form what the Scotchmen have done for Canada. It is full of romance.

Half a Hundred Hero Tales—These are classical tales which all of us ought to know, but few of us do know. Take the book home and read it out, hand it to the family and pretend you are living 2000 years ago.

My First Summer in the Sierra, by John Muir—If you are not interested in mountain scenery and natural parks, pictures and songs of nature, don't open the book. If however, nature does whisper to you of the glories of the sky, wind, rivers and trees, you will enjoy this book.

One Hundred Masterpieces of Painting—A very expensive and beautiful book, really too good for general circulation, but it is in the library for us, so take it home.

The Canadian Rockies, New and Old Trails, by A. P. Coleman—The author lectured before the Historical Society two years ago and touched upon some of the material covered by his new book.

Cuba and Her People—Well written, well printed and well illustrated. If $360 Per Acre for Property Formally Homesteaded by J. Fraser Robinson.

A deal which constitutes an absolute record for acreage to the south east of the city of Saskatoon is now reported by the firm of Messrs. Page & Brattland, 20th St. The purchase involves a total consideration of $112,000, with a cash payment of $30,000. The property transferred being 310 acres of the last half of section 14-36-5 west 3rd meridian, the price per acre being $360. The property formally belonged to Mr. J. Fraser Robinson, whose net profit out of the sale is hard to estimate. He took up the south quarter of the half section now sold, as a homestead nine years ago, and after proving up on this, purchased the other quarter at a price which seems almost nominal. He reserves ten acres at one corner of the property, to which he will immediately move his farm buildings. Mr. Robinson is a brother of Mr. W. N. Robinson, Napanee, and his many friends in his old home town will be glad to hear of his success.

"Fall wheat in most parts of Ontario is further advanced than ever before at this season, and the prospects are that following the severe winter and quick-stepping spring, this is going to be one of the best years on record for the agriculturists of this province." This was the opinion given by an experienced farmer after a quick trip from one end of the province to the other and back again. He said the farmers all through were very hopeful and the prospects justified their greatest optimism.

be able to take it so here's the next best thing.

A Voyage to the Arctic in the Whaler Aurora—This is the age of Arctic discovery, and this book is right in line with the latest topic.

Charles Dickens—Read it, and learn something about the world's greatest novelist.

Sun and Shadow in Spain—Most of us think we know something about Spain. Read the book you will enjoy it and will be astonished at your own ignorance for which there will no

Principles and Practice of Poultry Culture—It is time we all knew more about hens, chickens and eggs. This book is readable not only for the poultry fancier, but perhaps more so for the man who keeps a few hens just to supply his own table with the products of his hen house.

The Making of a Great Canadian

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she couldn't live. The Tablets cured her.—MR. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality.

And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions.

The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves.

Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake?—your reward for using PURITY flour

When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results

Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—than the difference.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now.

GROWING HORSE RADISH

Pungent Crop Does Best After Cauliflower or Early Cabbage

A Wisconsin subscriber of the Agriculturist asks for information the methods of raising and the horse radish. Although the horse radish is a perennial and will grow indefinitely if some of the roots are left in the ground, it is treated as an annual when in commercial gardening. It is most profitable as a second crop, following cauliflower or early cabbage. The main root is used for market, the rootlets being broken off and used for planting.

The upper part of each set is cut straight and the lower part is cut so that they may be planted end up. Of course they will grow, but they will make a most satisfactory crop if planted proper sets may be stored for the winter in a cellar or in pits out of doors. CONCERT HALL SCENES.

Remarkable Incidents Which Were Not Given on the Program.

Many Londoners will recall a remarkable affair which caused no little sensation at the Steinway Hall a few years ago. Some practical jokers desired to take a rise out of a well-known singer, and for this purpose they dressed up a wax figure to resemble him as closely as possible, and then, assisted by the arrangement of the building, thrust this effigy on to the platform in full view of the audience while the vocalist in question was actually singing. Naturally, the audience was dumfounded for the moment, as also was the victim of this "joke," which was, in reality, an outrage. Quickly recovering himself, however, he addressed a dignified sentence expressive of his amazement at the occurrence to the audience, and then left the platform, after which the offending figure was removed by the attendants. This was certainly an occurrence of a very unusual kind.

A personal incident of another order occurred in a London concert room more recently. This was in March, 1905, at which time, it may be recalled, a great revivalist mission was being held in London. The scene was St. George's Hall, and the occasion an afternoon ballad concert, at which it had been arranged that a well-known society entertainer would provide a "humorous interlude." When, however, the artiste appeared he startled the audience by announcing that, as he had been "converted to God through the agency of the mission at the Albert Hall," he did not feel inclined to proceed with the task of amusing people, and therefore begged to be excused. Whereupon he left the platform, never to return to the stage again.

The modern practice which requires all instrumental soloists to play from memory has been responsible not infrequently for trying occurrences. The late Henry Holmes, formerly well known as a violinist, once figured in a painful incident of this kind. He was playing in a concerto of Spohr at a Philharmonic concert some years ago, when, on reaching the cadenza in the last movement, his memory completely failed him, and, coming to a sudden stop, he ran right off the platform—leaving the conductor and orchestra to finish the work as well as they could without him.

Mr. W. Matthews, a famous amateur flautist of an earlier generation, had an unpleasant experience of a somewhat different kind. He was playing a solo at one of the Leslie Choir concerts in the old St. James' Hall, when it was noticed that his song seemed to be getting weaker and weaker, till eventually not a note would come, and he had to leave the platform. Temporary paralysis of the lips, induced by extreme nervousness, was understood to have been the cause of his breakdown.

Mme. Melba was once the victim of a rather disconcerting experience in her native Australia. After singing one of her famous songs she had returned to the platform, and was about to sing again when a loud voice was heard: "Keep perfectly still a moment; I am going to take a flashlight photograph." Melba had evidently not been apprised of this part of the program, for she was clearly taken aback, but, like the laughing audience, she bowed to the inevitable and the photographer got his picture.

A Varied Career.

Mr. Frank Harris, who has recently been lecturing to the fashionable world at "the Ritz," London, is one of the most remarkable figures in contemporary English literature. He was editor of The Fortnightly at its best, he made The Saturday Review the first literary paper in England, and invented Bernard Shaw as a dramatic critic. He has written some of our best short stories, one of our best novels—"The Bomb," a book on Shakespeare, which is as interesting as a romance and as startling as a Yellow Press news par. He discovered the late Richard Middleton; he fought numberless literary duels on "Vanity Fair." He has traveled all over America—in the West where no man's life is safe without a revolver; on Wall Street, where no man's life is safe without a bundle of debentures. He has made money at finance, he has a villa at Nice, and he has accused Mr. G. B. Shaw of stealing the idea of his Shakespeare play.

Natural Turkish Baths.

Preston, Ont., about seventy miles from Toronto, enjoys natural Turkish baths. Near the town is a lake the waters of which are impregnated with sulphur and other chemical properties. The lake is government property, and the cost to those availing themselves of its virtues is merely nominal, about sixpence being sufficient to remunerate the services of the halfbreeds preparing the bath.

This is taken in what is locally called a "sweat lodge." The lodge is made by digging a hole four feet deep, lining it with small boulders and covering it with an air proof tent. A fire is then built in the hole and kept burning until the stones are thoroughly heated. Water from the lake is sprinkled on the hot stones, and a steam arises which is laden with medicinal properties.—London Graphic.

Lord Normanby is one of the few peers and the only marquis in England in holy orders. For many years he conducted a school at Mulgrave, and some good stories are told of his scholastic days. His charges led an unpampered life. Hampers were forbidden, and the boys' weekly pocket money was limited to threepence.

Once when expounding the mysteries of the creation Lord Normanby asked one pupil, who is now a well known politician, the difference between himself and a tiger, meaning, of course, the difference in the scale of nature. The boy thought hard and at last blurted out:

"A tiger, sir, is an imperfect beast; but you are—well, a perfect beast!"

Along with the Egyptian motifs popular in trimmings and fabric designs are the Turkish toweling effects and the crashes, over which Paris is most enthusiastic.

THE SOY BEAN.

"Greatest Crop Ever Introduced," Says Enthusiastic Tennessee Farmer.

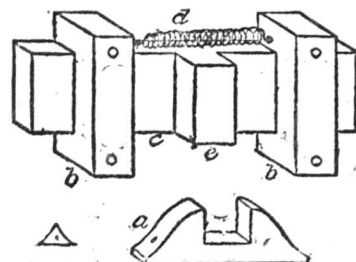

Describing his success with soy beans for enriching the land and producing abundant nutritious feed, a Tennessee farmer writes thus to the Southern Field:

"I grow the Mammoth Yellow variety, planting in rows thirty-six inches apart and cultivating about the same as corn. I cut with a mower when ripe and allow them to lie on the ground for a couple of days. After being in shock for ten days they are hauled to the shed and thrashed. We con-

SELF CLOSING GATE.

Here is a good plan for a self closing gate, reproduced from the Orange Judd Farmer, from which cuts and description are taken. The upright piece at the hinge end of the gate is made higher than the post it swings on. A crossbar is driven tightly through a hole at right angles with the gate. Make the crossbar two feet long or over and run be stored for the winter in pits out of doors. It is a good thing to sprinkle sand between the plants to prevent heating. While the plants may be reset and they do not produce a very good crop of roots for market or pay for replanting. They are planted between rows of cauliflower in holes eight inches deep made with a light spade. They are covered two or three inches deep. If they are not set early they are likely to come up too late to interfere with cultivating and the first crop. By planting the first horse radish opposite each cauliflower plant from 12,000 to 13,000 plants per acre are grown. One cultivation is usually sufficient, because the cauliflower leaves from the first crop shade the horse radish leaves soon and prevent weed growth.

Sam Imports Potatoes.
It seems that a great country like the United States might be able to grow enough potatoes for its own consumption. Our crop of 1910 amounted to 100,000,000 bushels, and we imported 100,000,000 bushels. Our crop of 1911 amounted to 103.8 per cent of the crop of 1910. The British Isles have had a very poor crop, though Germany has a very good abundance.

Condemned Cattle.
In 1910, 50,000,000 animals were condemned in the last fiscal year by the United States bureau of animal industry. More than 1,000,000 carcasses thereof were condemned for food, according to the report of Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the bureau. Tuberculosis was the cause of most of the condemnations.

Cranberries Come From.
Cranberry is a special crop that grows on a commercial scale in three sections of the county of Cod district in Massachusetts, New Jersey district and Wisconsin. Small marshes in Wisconsin have been reclaimed, and three districts produce the bulk of the commercial crop.

Old Easter Customs.

The English people formerly had two very large cakes divided among the congregation at the church on Easter. In 1645 Parliament forbade this by law, providing that the money spent for cakes should in future be used to buy bread for the poor.

At Easter let your clothes be new Or else be sure you will rue. The boys in the north of England will tell you that if you do not put on something new on Easter day some misfortune will befall you.

Underneath all these customs and carols lies the symbol of Christ's resurrection.

SOY BEANS.

Consider the bean straw after the beans are thrashed as fully equal to timothy or redtop for a feed for cattle.

"For late summer pasture I sow with a wheat drill about one and a half bushels to the acre. I am now feeding beef cattle and hogs on soy beans, and my dairy animals are producing more milk than ever before on a bean ration. Of course other feeds are mixed with the bean, as soys are rather rich when fed alone.

"The Mammoth Yellow grows here from three to five feet high, according to cultivation, and yields thirty bushels of seed per acre, which will bring around $3 to $3.50 per bushel. There is no finer improver of the soil than the soy bean. I have tried many other legumes, but none has given such uniformly high quality of hay and returned such large amounts of nitrogen to the soil. I consider the soy bean the greatest crop ever introduced into this part of the country both as a money crop and as a soil improver."

About $100,000 worth of soy bean oil was shipped in 1910 from Manchuria to the United States against almost none the year before. From Hull, England, shipments in 1910 of soy bean oil to the United States amounted to $140,000. This was crushed from the Manchurian beans. Considerable shipments of soy bean oil were also made in 1910 from Kobe, Japan, to the United States.

TWO SIDES OF ONE PROBLEM.

It is not enough to raise crops and live stock. They must be marketed. When you come to doing this how much easier it is to sell if these crops or stock are of high quality and how much better prices are realized. It really costs but little more to raise good stuff than it does to raise poor, and good stuff sells itself.

Everything that we have except a few fish and a hope in the hereafter comes out of the ground. Be good to the ground. —American Agriculturist.

Orchard and Garden Notes.

Early cabbage, lettuce and cauliflower are sown in the north in hotbeds any time from the latter part of January to the 1st of March. Sowing early in February is preferred by most growers, although excellent results may be secured by later sowings if the frames are handled properly.

It usually takes nearly a week to get the manure ready for the pit, and from four days to a week is generally required for the temperature to drop in the frame sufficiently to make sowing safe. The reader will thus understand that the manure for the hotbeds should be stacked about two weeks before he intends to sow.

While flats are not used by many gardeners there are strong points in their favor. It is more convenient to sow in flats in a warm, comfortable room, carrying the flats to the hotbed or cold frame after sowing or planting and perhaps watering, although watering is more frequently attended to in the hotbed or frame.

Steamer Ontario Lies C.T. Montauk Point With Fire In H'd.

Montauk Point, N.Y., April 9.—The fate of the steamer Ontario of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Co., which was beached here yesterday morning, was still in doubt last night. With her passengers safely gotten off, the steamer's crew of fifty men stuck to the ship, and at a late hour were still on board, fighting the flames in the hold. The fire, which had raged all day, appeared, however, to be slowly getting the better of the men and from the shore last night flames could be seen bursting occasionally through the forward deck.

Despite the doubt as to the eventual quelling of the flames, no fear was felt for the safety of the crew. The revenue cutters Acushnet and Mohawk and two wrecking tugs stood by to take the crew off in case the flames got completely beyond their control. The revenue cutter Seneca was also nearing the scene to give assistance.

A wrecking barge lay alongside, into which the cargo, consisting mostly of cotton, was being jettisoned. There was, however, a considerable quantity of whiskey, turpentine and resin in the afterhold, which was being removed as rapidly as possible.

Skull Fractured In Fight.

Toronto, April 9.—As the result of a free fight at 91 Agnes street yesterday afternoon, Petro Pevitt is in St. Michael's Hospital with a fractured skull and fifteen other Pollocks are under arrest, charged with being inmates of a disorderly house.

The men were having a high time at the Agnes street house yesterday, drinking more than one keg of beer, when trouble over a woman brought harsh words from the lips of three or four of them. In a few minutes the whole house was filled with excitement. Blood flowed freely, but only for a few minutes. The noise had reached the street and some children called the attention of the police, and a raid was made. As the police were rounding up their men, Andrew Pargett gave Petro Pevitt a terrible blow on the forehead with a beer glass. When the men were safely in Agnes street station it was found that Pevitt's skull had been fractured. He was removed to St. Michael's Hospital.

Thomas Gufoffski is charged with keeping the house, Pargett with wounding and the rest are held on the charge of being inmates.

Pest To Be Excluded.

Ottawa, April 9.—Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, is considering the prohibition of the importation of all fruit from the Hawaiian Islands to Canada owing to the ravages of the Mediterranean fly. It is one of the most destructive pests in the world to fruit and attacks northern as well as tropical fruit. It can live in northern or southern climates.

It has been doing a great deal of damage in the Hawaiian Islands, and it is feared that it will be brought over to British Columbia with pineapples, which are the principal exports of the islands to Canada, and thence spread to the whole of the Dominion.

Mr. Burrell has been in communication with the American authorities, and it is understood they are also

NO TRACE OF SLAYERS

Toronto Police Await the Recovery of Dunkelmann.

No Clue Can Be Found to the Murderers of Joseph Rosenthal Until His Companion Is Able to Tell What He Knows — Copper and Brass Has Been Stolen From Storehouse at Scene of Crime.

Toronto, April 9.—The police are still waiting for the recovery of Eli Dunkelmann, who is slightly improved but still in a critical condition at the General Hospital from the results of the beating he received when Joseph Rosenthal was murdered at the foot of Strachan avenue Friday night. In the recovery of Dunkelmann or the results hoped for from the offering of a reward by Attorney-General Foy or the city police commissioners, who meet at the city hall this afternoon, is seen the only ray of hope for the production of a clue which shall lead to the identification of the men who perpetrated what is still likely to prove a double murder of the most brutal nature which has occurred in this city in years. It is also believed that the offer of a substantial reward would aid materially in the solution of the shooting of Rebecca Berger in Chestnut street a few weeks ago, and which is still unsolved.

Yesterday the police were busy following to the uttermost the few meagre and indefinite clues provided in the Rosenthal case. These were well nigh exhausted without any appreciable light being cast upon the case.

It has become known that considerable quantities of copper and brass have been stolen from the Hydro-electric storehouses and employees have been discharged right and left in an unavailing effort to stop this leakage. It is now known that about two weeks ago that Rosenthal with one Silverman purchased about 1,000 pounds of copper from the manager at the Duncan street station of the Hydro-electric for 71-2 cents a pound about a week ago, and Rosenthal is known to have had over a hundred dollars about this time. This purchase was made at about 10 o'clock in the morning, and it is understood that the manager had full authority to make the sale.

The police have also learned of another man who was formerly connected in a business way with Rosenthal, but with whom he quarreled about a year ago. One intimately connected with this man is said to fit the description of the man who was seeking to locate Rosenthal for several days before the murder, and who also called up Antipiski, another dealer in junk, seeking to sell scrap at about the same locality. The man who sought Rosenthal told Mr. Rosenthal,

15 YEARS A DYSPEPTIC

Forced to Live on Stale Bread and Porridge.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

AVONDALE, N. B., October, 15th. "I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. I was forced to deny myself all such hearty foods as beans, meats, potatoes and could not drink tea or coffee. For the past two years, I lived on porridge, stale bread, etc. I had treatment from two doctors, and tried nearly every kind of medicine, but got worse. "Finally I saw a testimonial of "Fruit-a-tives" and concluded to give them a trial. I took nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods without suffering, and am no longer constipated."

LEMUEL A. W. BROWN.

Many people look on "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous medicine. It has indeed performed what have seemed like miraculous cures in hundreds of cases of chronic Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fresh fruit juices and valuable tonics. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

jr., over the telephone that he had always dealt with his father and would rather deal with him than with the Antipiski's, but that he must locate him soon or he would be forced to take the business to the others.

At the hospital Dunkelmann is still in a grave condition. He was conscious for a few moments yesterday, and when Silverman, referred to above, visited him he recognized him but was not allowed to carry on any conversation with him.

It is understood that the Attorney-General is considering offering a substantial reward for information which will lead to the arrest of the murderers, and the police commissioners, who meet this afternoon, will also consider the question of offering a reward.

Nature.

"We say that nature is blind," says John Burroughs in the Atlantic, "but she has no need of eyes, she tries all courses. She has infinite time, infinite power, infinite space, and so far as our feeble minds can see her delight is to play this game of blind man's buff over and over to all eternity. Her creatures get life and the joy and pain that life brings. But what is augmented or depleted or concluded or satisfied or fulfilled who knows?"

Rescuing Flood Victims.

Chatham, Tenn., April 9.—Rescue work here was busy last night bringing Wyanoke refugees who had been drowned on knolls, houseboats and a church since the levee broke south of Memphis on Saturday. Many were thinly clad. All suffering from hunger and thirst. A hundred had arrived early this morning and it was expected that the number would be not far from a thousand.

Evacuation of a portion of the city section of Memphis, populated by negroes, has ceased; after has receded, vacating street car traffic through that the town has been resumed people are preparing to move to their homes.

First of the Wyanoke refugees rescued was an assembly of 100 persons. They were in a place where they had taken refuge when the levee broke. Their supplies were scanty.

Chatham Carries Bylaw.

Chatham, April 9.—The industrial community submitted to the ratepayers of a bylaw yesterday was carried by 10 above the three-fifths majority of the total number of ratepayers. Through the passing of the bylaw of St. Mary's (Ohio) Mayor of St. Mary's, Ohio, will order the Swift Motor Car Co. to manufacture of gas, oil and gasoline.

apparel which are the principal exports of the islands to Canada, and thence spread to the whole of the Dominion.

Mr. Burrell has been in communication with the American authorities, and it is understood they are also alarmed at the situation and may pass legislation on the subject at the present sitting of Congress.

Preaching "Sabotage."

Kamloops, B.C., April 9.—"Sabotage," that form of industrial warfare which the French syndicalists have perfected, is now being advocated, it is said, by some of the leaders of the camps of the Industrial Workers of the World strikers along the line of the Canadian Northern. These leaders explain that the costly machinery of the contractors is fully in the hands of the workers, and that it is the easiest thing in the world to see that some important belts disappear mysteriously, that some nuts rattle off, and that the machinery be allowed to shake itself to pieces.

It is easy to have a stove upset some night in camp and the camp go up in smoke. It is easy to have a blast go off at the wrong time and in the wrong place, rock slides and cave-ins can be caused with a little ingenuity, and the blame can be traced back to no one.

Montreal's Harbor Plans.

Montreal, April 9.—According to Major G. W. Stephens, chairman of the harbor commission, most of the riverfront work during the coming season will be in the neighborhood and eastward from the Victoria Pier to the new berths at Hochelaga for the West Indian, South African and New Zealand boats.

With a view to providing facilities for the calling at Montreal in the near future of larger ocean liners, dredging will be assiduously carried on this summer, the ultimate aim of the harbor commission being to have a 35-foot river channel from this city to Quebec.

Baby Died on Train.

Brockville, April 9.—When an immigrant special over the Grand Trunk Railway reached here last night the conductor reported the death of a child, aged 17 months, which occurred on the train between Iroquois and Cardinal. The parents came from a province in Russia. After a coroner had made an investigation, the body was handed over to a local undertaker for burial. The incident held up the train for thirty minutes.

Campbellford's Power Problem.

Cobourg, April 9.—At a meeting of the council of the Campbellford Board of Trade it was decided to ask Hon. Mr. Cochrane to visit Campbellford and investigate the power question there. The secretary has received a reply stating that the Minister will visit Campbellford at as early a date as possible.

An English Turf Custom.

A curious usage of the English turf is one which ordains that, when once worn, the cap and jacket representing a patron's "colors" become the property of the jockey. If, as frequently happens, the owner wishes to retain them as a memento of a successful race, he must buy them from the employee to whom perhaps he gave them but an hour or two before.

Missionary Institute.

A Missionary Institute will be held in Napanee on Wednesday and Thursday, April 24th and 25th under the direction of the Missionary Education Movement. This Movement is interdenominational and represents both Home and Foreign Missions. It is not interdenominational however in the sense of being a separate distinct organization, but rather intradenominational, in that it is the union of all the denominational Missionary Boards in the creating and diffusing of an intelligent Missionary interest.

THE PURPOSE OF THE MOVEMENT. Its purpose is to assist in the missionary education of the churches by training leaders at conferences and educational institutes, to promote giving, to foster prayer for missions, and to enlist young men and women in missionary service as a life work. Its field is the Sunday Schools, Young People's Societies, Adult Bible Classes, Brotherhoods, and other organizations of the church, and the large army of unorganized men and women of the congregations.

THE INSTITUTE. The institute is considered a very effective agency for missionary education and Esther.

Good crowds greeted the performance of "Esther the Beautiful Queen," produced in the Brisco Opera House, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, by the choir of the Western Methodist Church assisted by local talent and by Messrs. Geo. White, London, and H. Aylsworth, Deseronto. The house was well filled both evenings, with the exception of the gallery. As a strictly amateur performance "Esther" scored a decided success. Mr. A. E. Paul was director of the performance and has had charge of the training and practices and the results showed that all who had any part in the production must have taken hold and worked hard for the success gained. The staging was realistic and with the varied and appropriate costumes of the performers made a moving picture.

brotherhoods, and other organizations of the church, and the large army of unorganized men and women of the congregations.

THE INSTITUTE—The institute is considered a very effective agency for missionary education and inspiration. It consists of a program composed of mission study classes, public addresses on missions, and discussion of missionary organization, methods and service.

AIMS OF THE INSTITUTE.—The aims of the Institute are to bring the largest possible spiritual uplift to each community, to enlist young people in a campaign of mission study, to introduce wise plans of missionary education in Sunday School, to promote the practice of systematic giving to missions, to emphasize prayer as a missionary force, to present the opportunities for christian service as a life work, and to aid the local church by increasing the efficiency of every missionary worker.

The death occurred on Sunday at the residence of his son, Charles Redden, Livingstone avenue, Kingston, of John Redden, aged 77 years. The remains were sent to his home at Wilton for burial.

Easter Wedding.

A very enjoyable event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stewart, Camden East, on Wednesday evening, April 3rd, at 8 o'clock, when their daughter, Marion Evelyn, was united in marriage to George Edwin Scott, youngest son of Mrs. George Scott of Switzerville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. Wilson of Wilton, in the presence of about fifty guests. The bride was given away by her father, and was a picture of loveliness in a gown of white veil over taffeta with trimmings of white silk fringe and pearl ornaments. She wore a customary veil and wreath and carried a bouquet of Easter lilies and Lily of the valley. The little flower girl, Miss Jessie Henderson, niece of the bride, looked very sweet and dainty in a dress of white silk with piping of pale pink, french valenciense insertion, and pink ribbons. She carried the wedding ring in the heart of an Easter Lily. Mendelssohn's wedding march was pleasingly rendered by Miss Gertrude Wagar of Centerville. After congratulations to the bride and groom, all repaired to the dining room, which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion and where everything was served to tempt the appetite. The gifts to the bride were very numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was an elegant gold watch and chain, and to the flower girl a pearl ring. The groom is a prosperous young farmer, who is well and favourably known for his manly bearing and sterling qualities. The happy couple were driven to Napanee to catch the fast train for Montreal, where they will spend a week with the groom's brother and other relatives. The bride travelled in a tailored suit of navy blue serge and a pretty Easter hat. On their return they will reside at their home in Switzerville. Their many friends join in wishing the young couple "bon voyage" through life.
